It is probable, also, that the Governor will have a chance to consider Greater New York plans. It is said that a bill is to be brought out providing for a new commission of fifteen, to draft a Greater New York charter, and that the Governor is to appoint nine of the Commission to act with the President of the old Commission, the Attorney-General, the State Engineer and the Mayors of New York, Brooklyn and Long Island City, who are members ex officio.

Gov. Morton has not yet acted upon the Brooklyn charliy grab bill, which the Platt-Worth crowd pushed through the Legislature. Wednesday is the last day the bill can be acted upon. Then if the Governor does not sign or veto it the bill will become a law by default. It is believed, however, that the Governor will veto the bill.

When Durando was examined as to his qualifications as a juror he swore that he did not have may acquaintance among the members of the police force, the only one whom he knew being the officer on duty at Washington Market, where he conducts his meat business.

Investigation by "The World," however, shows that a very large proportion of the members of Gramercy Lodge were also members of the police force. Among these were inspector McLaughin himself, Capt. Jacob Siebert, Capt. William Meakin, Capt. Donald Grant, Capt. Edwin Slevin, now dead; Acting Capt. William Hogan, Sergt. Armstrons, Michael Crowley, Charles Heidelberg, Frank Mangin, Thomas Muiry Philip Elley, Jacob Von Gerichien, Charles A. Hanley and a score of other police officers, from sergeants down, from hearly every precinct in the city.

It has also been learned that, although Durando swere he did not know any of the lawyers in the case, he was, in 1882, a witness in the dworse case of Daniel E. Brinckerhoff, the cracker manufacturer, against his wife, Henrictta, and co-respondent in this case, and he afterwards married Mrs. Brinckerhoff in Jersey City.

"I cannot say anything at all about the matter now."

Special District-Attorney Fox also declined to discuss the matter.

Inspector McLaughlin, when asked to-day if he knew Durando, said that he did not remember ever having seen him before. He said he did not know that he was a member of Gramercy Lodge, to which the Inspector belongs.

Detective-Sergt, Von Gerichten who is attached to the District-Attorney's office, and who was formerly President of the lodge, said to-day that he knew Durando well and had inditated him into the lodge.
